Giving is a Grace from God By Rev. Donovan Myers, CIRMC

Please read 2 Corinthians 8:1-15

For many people, giving represents an appeal to altruistic feelings. We give because it's the human thing to do. If others are in need, our duty is to 'help out' where we can. But also, many see giving as a necessary outpouring of their excess. I have more than I need, so I should share. While those two motivations might be reasonable, the letter from Paul to the Corinthians speaks about giving in a way that challenges some commonly held assumptions. On the one hand, for him, giving fundamentally challenges the concept of ownership, the right we have to possess 'stuff'. It asserts that what we think is ours, is only ours on loan. We are not really owners but rightly managers. Giving, then is an outworking of the responsibility of our management of those resources. We don't lay claim to things in a way that ties us to them and them to us. On the other hand, when Paul wrote in the way that he did about the giving of the Macedonian Christians, he was challenging the Greco Roman worldview that wealth was the result or sign of divine approval. That somehow, it is in having a lot of stuff that we demonstrate out strong connection to God or that God likes us. Both people who have a lot and people who have a little are blessed by God.

It seems then, that Paul is framing the discussion about 'giving' as essentially a matter of character. For him, our outlook on 'giving' or our disposition towards 'giving' speaks to who we know ourselves to be. It is an indication of the quality or nature of the person that we are. You might have heard it said that "...when it comes to giving, some people stop at nothing." So, whether we take the minimalist approach or give sacrificially might have something to do with our understanding of who we are and the nature of the person that we have become.

Paul is unashamed in making a case for giving and does so by appealing to the example of Macedonian Christians. He does three things in outlining his case.

Firstly, he Examines their Motivation for giving. Why is it that we give? Giving should come from an understanding of grace. In verse 1, he asserts that their outpouring of love came from the grace that God had given the Macedonian church. The ability to give beyond getting back or building up 'good will' only happens because of the supernatural deposit of grace in a person's life. It is an understanding of the unmerited and undeserved favor of God that we receive in Christ's sacrificial giving of himself on the cross. Giving then becomes a virtue, an act of grace that we offer without the promise of anything in return or the hope to 'cash in our chips' at a later date. This requires that we embrace grace, live into grace, and then offer grace. So, in verse 7 he exhorts them to "...see that you also excel in this grace of giving". He seems also to employ another 'unlikely' method of encouraging this kind of giving. He suggests that they do a comparison of their giving with the giving of others. But it is not the quantity of the giving with which he appears interested. Instead, he wants to "...test the sincerity of (their) love (against) the earnestness of others." He wants them to give out of their heartfelt gratitude and appreciation for the grace they have received from Christ.

Secondly, he Expresses their Maturity in giving. He uses the takeaways from their demonstration and experience of giving in order to teach the principle that giving is an expression of the maturity of our faith. Their giving was not limited to or restricted by hardship. For it was “in the midst of a very severe trial, their overflowing joy and their extreme poverty welled up in rich generosity” (v2). They didn’t use their challenging circumstances or their meagre resources as an excuse to hoard or to refrain from reaching out to others. In the face of severe trials, their joy transformed their poverty into generosity. This maturity of faith inspired them to give not only according to their ability, but also motivated them to sacrifice [to give beyond their apparent ability]. They gave as able yet even more than they were able. And this giving was not coerced but was an outflowing from this depth of faith which provided the internal motivation for their act of service. They did it all “...entirely on their own...” (v3), they “...pleaded for opportunity to give” (v4) and gave of themselves “...first of all to the Lord, and then ... to (the apostles)” (v5).

Thirdly, he Encourages the adoption of their Mindset in giving. By Paul’s application of the Macedonians’ approach to giving, he is offering to the Christians in Corinth as well as to us who read this something of a blueprint for giving. In matters of giving, he seems to suggest that we must recognize that good intentions are good, but not good enough. There is a need to follow through. So, in verse 11 he admonishes them to “...finish the work, so that your eager willingness to do it may be matched by your completion of it, according to your ability.” In other words, don’t let good intentions be the enemy of action. “Whatever you give is acceptable if you give it eagerly. And give according to what you have, not what you don’t have” (v12 - NLT).

Additionally, he gives a word of warning that helps to guard against exuberance or the idea that our giving should leave us

‘worst off. He indicates that the goal of giving is to relieve not redistribute hardship. The objective is equity. In verse 12 he says, “I don’t mean your giving should make life easy for others and hard for yourselves. I only mean that there should be some equality.” God’s distribution of the manna in the wilderness set the standard that “...the one who had much did not have too much, and the one who had little did not have too little.” (Exodus 16:18)

In all of Paul’s discussion about extending self in reaching out to serve others who have needs, we hear the underpinning of the Hebrew scriptures understanding about wealth, possessions, or stuff. It is this: “the earth is the Lord’s and all that is in it” (Psalm 24:1). Our participation in ownership of any portion of it is but a trust from God. Humans are really empowered managers of the abundance of God’s earth. Whatever amount we have in our care and keeping AND however we gain wealth, our stewardship has accountability. It is to utilize being fundamentally aware that it is God’s and therefore should glorify God in all of its usage. And that awareness should propel us to sharing it – so that all of God’s creation are benefited by God’s provision. Freely you have received of the grace of God, and freely then should you give out of that grace to others.

It has been said that there are three kinds of givers -- the flint, the sponge, and the honeycomb. To get anything out of a flint you must hammer it; and then you get only chips and sparks. To get water out of a sponge you must squeeze it; the more pressure, the more you will get. But the honeycomb just overflows with its own sweetness.

Which kind of giver are you?

Following on a successful initiation of the Discipleship 'Child of God' Training Sessions earlier this year at Webster on "The Development of Active Spiritual Discipline"; we are encouraged by the level of interest and thirst for knowledge demonstrated not only by the members and adherents of our Church Webster, but also by interested persons from other denominations locally and globally spanning participants from the USA, Canada, and the Caribbean. PM Medal of Appreciation Awardee Sees Teaching as Ministry

Prime Minister, the Most Hon. Andrew Holness (r) presents Principal of the Mt. Zion Primary and Infant School in St. James, Onex Bowen, with the Prime Minister's Medal of Appreciation for Service to Education, during a ceremony held on September 8 at Jamaica House.

Principal of the Mt. Zion Primary and Infant School in Montego Bay, St. James, Onex Bowen, views her teaching journey as a ministry.

The devout Christian believes that she is fulfilling a calling on her life to provide instruction for the nation's children, a call which she answered 23 years ago.

After completing her teacher-education training at Church Teachers' College in Mandeville, Mrs. Bowen returned to her hometown of Somerton in James where she served for two years at her alma mater, Somerton All-Age and Infant School, for two years, before moving to Mt. Alvernia Preparatory School in Montego Bay where she remained for three years.

Mrs. Bowen returned to her core training in secondary education at Spot Valley High School in St. James as the Head of the English Department, where she taught English Language and English Literature for seven years.

For the past 11 years, the accomplished educator has been at the helm of the Mt. Zion Primary and Infant School where, as principal, she has led the charge to transform the institution.

"Although I was trained to teach at the secondary level, God has equipped me with what I need to minister to the children. The primary school, as you know, is a little different from what my training prepared me for, but I realised that in answering the call to be an administrator at that level, God equipped me with everything that I needed," she says.

The Mt. Zion principal says she does not have a preference for teaching children at any particular stage, whether primary or secondary, noting that the outcome yields the same level of satisfaction.

"It doesn't matter what age children I teach; I love what I do, I have a passion for education, and I am very happy with what I am able to do with the children," she says.

Mrs. Bowen is pleased that her school has experienced exponential growth during her tenure and recalls the early days when she had to play a dual role in administration and classroom instruction.

This is no longer a necessity, as the staff complement has also grown, but she still, at times, supports the teachers in their classrooms.

"I love teaching so although I am now an administrator, there are times when I will go into the classroom and teach. I don't think I can get away from that," she says.

"I greet my children, ask if they are OK and wish them a good day, and then I go back to my other duties. But there are times where I will go sit in the class. I'm an instructional leader because I stay close to the curriculum and what the teachers are doing. I actually go in the class and do incidental teaching at times," the principal notes.
